Dance Medicine

Sports Medicine

Dance Medicine

Dancers are athletes who require a great deal of strength, flexibility and endurance. The goal of the CHKD dance medicine program is to treat and prevent injury, and to provide complete, multidisciplinary care to all of our dancers.

Services include:

- Comprehensive medical evaluations
- Injury prevention programs
- Physical therapy for dance injuries
- Pilates-based conditioning and rehabilitation
- Pointe readiness assessment
- Health and injury screenings at area dance schools
- Injury prevention and nutrition clinics

CHKD is also home to the region's only comprehensive pediatric sports medicine program offering:

- Primary care pediatric sports medicine physicians
- Fellowship-trained sports medicine pediatric orthopedic surgeons
- Sports-certified physical therapists
- Certified athletic trainers
- Sports nutritionist

Dance Injuries

At CHKD, we understand that dancers have unique needs. Most injuries in dance are due to overuse, and more than 90 percent of these injuries can be successfully treated with conservative rehabilitation and a minimal amount of time away from training.

CHKD offers sports medicine physicians, surgeons and physical therapists with backgrounds in dance and experience treating dancers and performers. We understand the range of motion, strength and stability required for a successful return to dance.

We take a team approach to treating dance-related injuries and have developed a program specifically designed for the demands placed on dancers' young bodies. Our goal is to get you back into the studio as quickly as possible.

A Specialized Team

Dr. Joel Brenner, medical director of the CHKD sports medicine program and a dancer himself, is the official dance company physician of the Governor's School for the Arts, Todd Rosenlieb Dance and the Virginia Ballet Theater. The CHKD sports medicine program is an official partner of these organizations, providing comprehensive care to dancers in these programs.

Dr. Allison Crepeau, a CHKD orthopedic surgeon with special interest in dance medicine is also a dancer and has previously provided care for the Boston Ballet as well as visiting companies like The Rockettes.
